TELEVISED TORTS

Back when I was a sprout, the ambition of any fledgling Blackstone was to grow up to be Clarence Darrow and defend sex perverts, preferably rich ones. But that's anachronistic, like aspiring to a Stutz Bearcat. Today, young lawyers, while grubbing away at routine tasks, dream secretly of having their own television show. There's nothing like habeas corpus on a national network with a sponsor and all that jazz.

Such a one, forsooth, is Edgar Allan Jones Jr., who deals in televised torts as the judge on "Day in Court," three afternoons and one evening a week on ABC-TV, and the rest of the time is a practising professor of law at UCLA. A deceptively youngish-looking fellow, Jones sturdily defends his split personality -- one foot in show business, the other in jurisprudence -- by explaining that he has seven children with an eighth on the way and any device for earning money, even the practice of law, is forgivable with that many mouths to feed.

How did it affect his relations with his students at UCLA? "Students will always look on a professor as an oddball," sighed Mr. Jones. "This just adds another dimension." On "Day in Court," the cases are taken from actual legal cases with real attorneys who appear anonymously. The plaintiffs and defendants are actors who stick to their lines. The lawyers stick fairly close to theirs except when Jones throws them.

Jones appears cold without even having read the script or the case and picks his way through it, as a real judge might. "This gives ulcers to the actors and directors and producers. They've been trying to get me to read the cases but I simply haven't time. Besides I think it gives the show a little excitement when no one knows the outcome."

Theoretically, the trials are supposed to have been going on all day and the outcome is concentrated in the half hour on the air. "We do maintain a remarkable degree of authenticity," says Mr. Jones. "To research the cases, I use the top students of the law school Five students split up the work and also divide up $250 a week. This is a lot of money to a law student and we actually get much better work than if we gave the $250 to a fulltime lawyer."

The American Bar Association thinks highly enough of the show to give it its Gavel award for "outstanding public service by increasing public understanding of the administration of justice through the television series." Jones, too, feels that that is the show's chief value, teaching people a little of how the law works and what their rights are. Since each of these cases is the kernel of a real case, there was a real decision at one time.

"My decisions are completely ad lib, based on just what I hear on the show," Jones points out. "Two-thirds of the time I reach the same decision as that of the original court. One-third of the time I don't. We have some interesting cases of law.

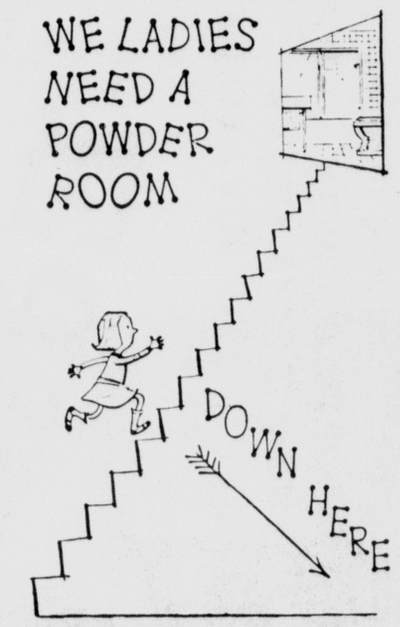

"We just had one on the right of privacy. An ex-con brought damages against a movie producer who did a movie on this man's life. In 1939 he had been put in prison for second degree murder and that put the story in the public domain. After he was released he went straight, got married and became an insurance agent. The movie upset his life terribly and consequently I found for him. So did the California court which originally tried the case."

Every Friday "Day in Court" features arraignments, usually five of them. If you watch a week from this Friday for example, you'll see Jones preside over the arraignments of a man accused of turning his pets into alcoholics, a shoeshine boy accused of assault, and a father endangering the health of his child. "The viewers like the arraignments best. That way they get a capsule crime in four minutes -- criminals come to the bench and plead guilty or not guilty. I stick to the facts of the case. I'm not going to jeopardize my law career to make it a good show. In fact if the show ever gets in the way of my real career which is the law, I'll quit."

SMALL SCHOOLS ROOKED

The small school districts in Pennsylvania, or most of them, will take another financial licking if two bills recently introduced in the state senate and house are passed. Called a "Fair-Play" amendment to the state school code, it is anything but, and the small school districts of the state have been ignored by Harrisburg through a refusal to act on Bill 1108, a very fair bill which was introduced by the late Allen Gibson and was backed by school boards and educational groups throughout the state.

The so-called fair-play deal is not intended to help all districts. It is supposed to abolish what is described as discrimination against districts which have large groups of pupils attending private schools. Because the school subsidy is based on the number attending public schools these districts don't receive money for those attending private schools. They don't like that idea.

But what is wrong with it? If the Warren area jointure could lose half its students through private schools, the cost of education would take a major drop. If the parents chose to pay the cost of private education that would be their business. The result would be that the old high school now being abolished would be more than adequate, if you could make it fire proof, and certainly a much smaller school would be sufficient.

But we do not have enough of our boys and girls attending private schools in this county to have much effect on the cost of education. The result is that our costs are much higher and we are the ones who need the additional help.

But the alleged fair-play amendment would pour thousands of dollars into cities like Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and Erie where major segments of the school population is found in private institutions. We see no reason why a city with half its young people to educate can't meet its obligations with even less help from the state.

Under this proposed arrangement Allegheny county would receive an additional $7,852,504. Berks county would receive $386,211 more. Bucks county would get another $758,049. Butler would enjoy $106,142. Cambria would take in $336,332. Delaware would get over three million more.

In Montgomery it would be over two million in additional state funds. Philadelphia would soak up over ten million of the slice.

NOT ALL BIG ONES

These are big counties with many school districts but you will find injustice when you look at the small ones also. Johnsonburg would receive $10,251. Ridgway would get $10,807. Little St. Marys would receive $51,501.

Millcreek in Erie county would receive an additional $70,119!

Only one district in Warren county is listed as eligible for a portion of this "fair-play melon". Warren would receive $7,574.

Obviously the imbalance is due to parochial schools. Because a major share of the Millcreek parents choose to send their children to such schools, that area receives ten times as much as Warren in additional state funds. Because the same thing is true in St. Marys that town will enjoy a very fat take while small districts in Warren county get absolutely nothing.

You can find this inequity throughout the state. Suddenly we are not basing the costs on the pupils educated, but on the population. This is absurd, unfair, and a very fast curve favoring the large cities, such as Pittsburgh where it is estimated that half the pupils attend private schools.

UNFAIR TO MANY

We are not thinking only of the small towns which will receive nothing or next to nothing through this operation. We also are concerned about the people who pay to educate their children in private schools. None of this goes into their pockets. They will continue to pay the same bill for their young people, and we assure them that there will be no reduction in their school taxes.

If a share of this were to be distributed among the schools which offer private education it would be debatable, but at least it would be more deserving of the fair-play description than that behind which the current maneuver is hiding.

The state's press is receiving lengthy releases supporting this bill, which it did not receive relative to 1108, the law which would have truly given us some help. It is typical of our Harrisburg fumbling that they can find time and energy to help the areas which have less pupils to educate and lack the courage to find a state tax which would support a bill that would have offered true relief in a fair manner.

While we talk about danger that faces us, and the great need for better schools, we let the influence of those who reap the harvest from a business as usual policy block real progress in our educational system. Until the public becomes alert to the danger and is willing to pay the price, Harrisburg and Washington will stall away precious years that may cost us our heritage of freedom.

And while this has been going on in Harrisburg there has been no hurry on our politicians' part to send a replacement to the assembly so that we can be truly represented. Politics as usual and business as usual are far more important to some than the life of this nation.

$43 MILLIONS FILCHED

Mail fraud, and mail fraud arrests, soared to record heights during the 12 months ended June 30, 1959, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield reported today.

A report for the 1959 fiscal year from Chief Postal Inspector David H. Stephens shows that, in 139 major mail fraud cases, an estimated $43,742,204 was filched from the public. Arrests brought about by Postal Inspectors during the 1959 fiscal year were 28.4 percent over the previous 12 month period ended June 30, 1958.

"Prophet John the Conqueror," whose real name is Jack Pittman, was sentenced to 30 months in prison and fined $1,500 following conviction of a fraudulent mail scheme which, conservatively estimated, brought him over $100,000 from the sale of his "special blessings."

"Prophet John" promised to restore hair overnight and turn enemies into friends - for a fee. Some of his specialties were "Lucky Dream Earrings - $7.00; -- Evil Eye Joe -- Controlling Oil --$5.00; Uncle Ned's Black Cat Bone Dust -- $9.00; Aunt Sally's Black Pussy Foot Oil with John the Conquerer Root and Lucky Dime -- $11.00, and two problems answered with each $5.00 donation."

John J. Shimkus was sentenced to a year after conviction on charges of swindling thousands of people throughout the country in his "Puzzlers Contest Service."

Through his fraudulent mail scheme, Shimkus not only supplied puzzles, but under another name he sold answers to "tie-breakers." After a series of these "tie-breakers" he "disqualified" finalists on the grounds they had "bought" answers (even though they had bought them from him). When arrested, Shimkus had spent entry money as fast as it had come in, leaving nothing to pay off. He told Postal Inspectors he was planning a second contest to pay winners of the first.

John Wroda, who previously had served 3 prison sentences for mail fraud, was sentenced to 2 years imprisonment for obtaining salesman's samples and other merchandise, selling the items and using the money for his own use. Falsely representing himself as a graduate of Notre Dame, a stable and well respected citizen, owning a winter and summer home and as a salesman of established reputation, Wroda, using various aliases, received merchandise, books and even Bibles in his swindle of numerous business houses. He never submitted any orders nor returned merchandise.

A vicious vending machine racket was terminated last month with the sentencing of seven promotors by Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye who described the operation as "one of the worst rackets" he had seen in 25 years on the Federal Bench.

Victims paid $2,200 to $2,400 for 10 vending machines which they were told would be placed on routes within easy servicing distance of their homes. Further, they were told that the company would repurchase the machines if the customer was dissatisfied. There was not one case, Inspectors found, in which the promoters furnished machines, or kept any other promises.

The swindlers made it difficult or impossible for victims to contact them by using forms, letterheads and papers on which was printed an old address and a telephone long since disconnected.

SALES TAX INFORMATION

Because we believe there are possibilites that the sales tax may be misinterpreted by many we are printing information supplied by a bulletin from the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association.

NEW TAX COVERAGES

Bottled Soft Drinks which are closed and sealed in glass, metal, paper, or any other type of container or bottle of less than one gallon capacity, but excluding natural fruit or vegetable juices or their concentrates, and also excluding natural fluid milk or non-carbonated drinks made from milk derivatives. NOTE: The tax applies ONLY to purchases made from a soft drink bottler or distributor; it does not apply to purchases made from retail stores or soda fountains, etc.

Malt or Brewed Beverages, Liquor, Wines, etc. but only when purchased from a State Liquor Store or from a manufacturer or distributor; the tax does not apply to over-the-bar drinks.

Auto Inspection Fees.

Repairing, Altering or Cleaning tangible personal property. (Note: The term "maintaining" which appeared in the original draft of the bill was deleted in the Senate.)

As stated in our previous bulletin, the term "tangible personal property" is re-defined in this specific connection to include all Wearing Apparel. Thus, such services to wearing apparel as Dry Cleaning, Dyeing, Fitting, Laundering, Mending, or Pressing are all taxable, including laundry service provided by coin-operated equipment.

However, the performance of any of the above-listed services (such as fitting or pressing) in the "preparation for sale of new wearing apparel" is exempt, unless it is formal wear or a fur garment in which case these services would be taxable.

NEW TAX EXEMPTIONS

Labor or Service Costs in delivering, Installing or Applying New Merchandise when such charges are separately stated. Note: The reinstatement of the exemption for installation charges on new goods means that the situation reverts to what it was prior to April 15, 1959, when installation charges were first made taxable.

However, no deduction may be made for materials, time, labor or service on repairing, altering or cleaning jobs, including wearing apparel, where a sale of new merchandise is not involved.

The exemption for charitable and religious organizations, etc. has been widened to include "materials and supplies when purchased by such organizations or institutions for routine maintenance and repairs" -- i.e. to real estate.

Kinzua Dam Rides A Precarious Rail

The battle for water which seems to have developed into full bloom between New York and Pennsylvania shows up very plainly in the current efforts to get a public works bill through congress. New York wants the benefit to be derived from the storage and control of upper Allegheny waters and is doing everything possible to kill the Kinzua dam.

This water belongs to Pennsylvania and the nation through which it flows by way of Pittsburgh and other major cities. It should be conserved so that the use will be extended through low water months, and it should be controlled in the spring as a protection to downstream residents.

The Kinzua dam will provide these benefits, and others too. But current legislation which would provide the money needed to get the preliminary work started is tied up with many other projects and the total gives economy-preaching officials an opportunity to perform in the public's eye.

But there also are deliberate attempts by New York congressmen to do more than stop the public works bill. They have their sights trained directly on the dam.

One of these is Charles E. Goodell of Jamestown, whose lone vote killed the effort to over-ride the veto. He calls it pork barrel. But he wouldn't so describe it if the water came to Chautauqua county. This would cost even more money and would deny the Pennsylvania valleys of this precious water.

Another maneuver was performed by Republican John Tabor of New York. He tried to knock "carry-over" money out of the bill. This would have denied the engineers the use of the $1,300,000 already appropriated for the dam, and which was frozen until the Indian litigation was completed.

Tabor's amendment was defeated, but it suggests to us that even the previously appropriated $1,300,000 is tied up in the current legislation, and no one in public office has been able to explain that one satisfactorily. If the money previously was appropriated and then was denied the engineers until the court action was over, why did it not immediately become available when the high court had made its favorable decision? The army engineer comptroller office doesn't know whether it has the money or not.

The new public works bill has been reduced 2-1/2 per cent, thus saving thirty million dollars. This is the figure which the President mentioned when saying the bill was too expensive, but the bill still includes the projects he did not want.

The bill now is reported to include $2,665,000 for the Kinzua dam, including previously appropriated money and the new amount reduced by 2-1/2 per cent. The vote for it was 302 to 93, including an affirmative from Congressman Leon H. Gavin. Van Zandt and a couple other Pennsylvania reactionary conservatives voted against it.

(The president vetoed the bill Wednesday. The House is expected to lick the veto today.)

A MAJOR SAVINGS to Warren county taxpayers has been effected by the Warren county commissioners by advancing the completion date of the required tax equalization program by one year and through a tax calculating service provided by the chief assessor who is performing work on tax duplicates that will save the various districts thousands of dollars in clerical expenses.

Confusion was caused on May 25, 1959, just four days prior to the release of the 1959 assessment roll, when the Warren area school boards levied their 1959 tax on the basis of the 1958 assessment roll. Adjusting the 1958 assessment roll for 1959 tax purposes would have cost the county about $15,000, and much extra work would have been caused the various tax collectors.

The commissioners initiated a special act in the state legislature to require all taxing districts of Warren county to use the 1959 assessment roll as the basis for 1959 taxes. The act was called Senate Bill 935 and was introduced by Senator L. E. Chapman. It now is in effect.

The advancement of the new tax equilization program, the savings in office and clerical expenses, and the reduction in local tax assessors' fees and expenses combine to save the county taxpayers thousands of dollars.

THE DEMOCRATS have outdone the Republicans in Warren county during the registration period that started May 25 of this year. They have signed up 436 new Democrats to the 161 obtained by the GOP. This trend has been true in every part of the county where special registration days have been held, except Grand Valley.

The specials end today (Thursday) when registration has been scheduled for the Tidioute town building and the Russell fire hall until eight this evening. The court house will be open until 9 p.m. Friday evening for this purpose, until 5 p.m. on Saturday, and until 9 p.m. on Monday.

Monday is the last day for those who wish to vote in this fall's election. It is an important one with many local officials to be named. If you believe in democracy, why not practice it.

The case is the fifth in the county this season. The other four, who had shots and are now out of isolation, were of a milder nature.

It was reported the tractor went onto the berm and as the operator pulled it back onto the highway a tire blew. This sent the machine across the road into a bank, rolling it over.

WHAT WILL YOU BID? . . . . . That is the question which will be asked at the street auction during the Sidewalk Festival held in Warren Friday and Saturday, September 25 and 26.

Sponsored by the Retail Division of the Warren area Chamber of Commerce, all participating merchants will place counters on the sidewalks in front of their places of business, selling their bargain items there. This instills the carnival atmosphere which everyone enjoys.

There will be free parking in the four municipal parking lots during the two-day event, and free amusement rides for the kiddies will be provided by the White-Way Drive-In Theatre.

The Grand Prize - By registering in the stores, customers have the opportunity to win 50 theatre tickets (2 each to 25 winners), and a grand prize is a garden tractor with snow plow attachment. Registration blanks will be provided and a drawing held the Monday following the event.

Highlight of the festivities will be the auction which will be held Friday evening at 9:15 o'clock on the corner of Liberty and Second streets. Each merchant will be asked to put up an item for the professional auctioneer to sell. The main attraction will be the auctioning of a Renault Dauphine car.

"GUYS AND DOLLS" . . . . will be the opener of the Warren Players Club 30th season to be presented October 15-16-17 in the Woman's Club auditorium. The musical, the first in about five years, will be directed by Helen Potter, with line direction by Bill Hill, Jr., and Penny Beach as choreographer.

Others will be "Tea House of the August Moon", "Death of a Salesman", and finishing off the year with a light, bright show, "Holiday For Lovers", which will be directed by Edith O'Hara.

The price for the four plays (a season's ticket) is $4.00. Fill in an application and mail it along with your check to the Warren Players Club, Box 563, Warren.

This year the shows will be on Saturday evening as well as Thursday and Friday. This is being done to accommodate those who are "tied up" in stores or offices Thursday and/or Friday night.

You may, if you like, reserve the same seat in the same row on the same night (Thursday, Friday or Saturday) for the entire season. This convenience is provided to save you the annoyance of mailing or calling in your reservation for each show.

THE OLD ONES

Out there in Michigan on September 20 about four hundred old cars, and probably just as many old people, will gather for the ninth old car festival. This will be combined with the Glidden Tour, which is a revival of the 1905 to 1915 endurance trips that were supposed to show the horsey set just how reliable a gas buggy could be. (The trips didn't last that long. It just seemed that way.)

The Glidden tour starts on September 13 in Cincinnati, and those who make it will arrive in Detroit on September 16. There they will visit the Henry and Edsel Ford auditorium and the General Motors Technical Center. The festival is on the Village Green and the village is Greenfield.

For judging purposes the cars are divided into two classes, those prior to 1916 and those produced from 1917 to 1925. Which is a frightening thought. This makes us eligible, if we only had a couple of those 1925 models we once operated and one of which we junked (it was a mighty sporty and productive convertible, too).

The points are piled up by accuracy of restoration (you see we only would have had to store it away and we would be one hundred percent accurate), appearance (the bald spot would help there), and such things.

Amusing is what they consider stunts to entertain the spectators. These are contests in cranking, coasting, balancing, and slow driving. We never found anything very entertaining about these major experiences in the field of driving a pre-1925 car on mud-filled roads. All a thumb was good for in those days was to wrap it around a crank or a ride behind a horse for which the farmer might charge you a week's pay ($15 to be exact).

We just remembered another convertible of pre-'25 vintage. Parts of it still must lie in the village of Beechwood, and a good name it would be for the portions we deposited therein. The top braces were of wood in those "good old days" and in the midst of a downpour we raced for the wagon to raise the top, an operation which we had not performed because we just had bought the racy little number.

We grabbed a top support to start the lifting job (no power buttons in those happy hours) and the thing came off in our hand. "Rotten" is not the word for the piece we held. "Pithy" would be more accurate.

Still optimistic we raced to the other side and grabbed a strut (or whatever they called those wagon top braces). It also came off in handfuls. We got soaked, the car got soaked, and the dealer . . . he got it back. With no top.

If you want to take part in this ancient business you better hurry. This is ~~September~~ 10 and the anachronistic tour is only ten days away. By be-whiskered motoring standards Detroit may be farther away than that. In fact, if your pre-1916 model is truly accurate you may not make it without a towline and a 1959 model thumb.

STRIKE-HAPPY

There is one thing certain about Warren county this winter. If you want to bowl there is no reason why you can't. Leagues will not fill up the alleys now available. If they do there will be almost twice as many leagues as we have had in operation the past few years.

This makes it dandy for the "open" bowlers who don't want to be tied down with regular league nights. But it may not be so happy a situation for the alley operators. If you don't have them packed solid on both shifts in the modern alleys at current costs you are lucky to pay the rent.

But it is a good game; one which attracts the entire family, and one in which the lady has just as much chance to score big as does the man of the house. This may not do much for his ego and for that reason a few of them will stay home with Have Gun, Won't Travel. And others will say their league bowling is enough.

But the ladies are having at it with great busto, and for the good of all lane investors we hope they get out there and slew-foot it down those approaches in late-dinner droves. If they go at it in small enough groups it beats dusting for exercise and they may keep pretty trim until summer brings another heat wave of fresh air fun.

The ladies will have their national tournament in Denver next spring, starting April 21. Teams will use averages as of December 1, and entries close on February 10. Reservations can be made now, but will not be held without the cash after December 28.

The divisions are for teams over 750 and those under that figure. It would be a nice trip and there is competition for all classifications of ability.

Meanwhile, there is the tag end of summer and much fine fall weather just ahead to take us out where the lungs benefit and there is a spring in the underfooting. Golf, tennis, fishing, hunting, hiking, nature study, photography, archery, corn roasts, convertibles and the harvest moon.

And there is a slight chill in the night air that makes that moonlight comfy-fying. (The Thesauris won't help you. The word has to be lived.)

ASIDES

WE ARE THE WORST

Warren county has the worst record in the state in the effort to eliminate polio. We have not taken advantage of the Salk vaccine and this summer we developed six cases. Salk even at the best is not one hundred per cent effective, but it will protect between 75 and 85 per cent of those using it. To really do a job it involves three shots plus a booster.

Another vaccine probably will be available within the next few months. It is known as Sabin vaccine, named after Dr. Albert Sabin who developed it in Cincinnati. This vaccine can be taken orally, like liquid medicines. It is 95 to 100 per cent effective, and, most astounding of all, it communicates its effectiveness to others through the development of a mild form of contagious polio in the patient. Others who catch it from the patient also are protected.

This vaccine has not been tried in the United States because the use of the Salk vaccine would prevent a true test. But it has been given to over six million children in other nations. The results of these tests, especially those in Russia where their rate of polio is about the same as ours, soon will be known.

A complete article on the new vaccine and Dr. Sabin can be found in last Sunday's New York Times magazine section. The Observer has hesitated to discuss the new vaccine because we suspect news of its possibilities will cause many to wait for its development.

Taking a vaccine by spoon sounds much more pleasant than a needle prick. But the big error is that we fail to realize how much more punishing is the disease than the little inconveniences occasioned by visiting a doctor for preventive purposes.

THROW AWAY GREASE GUN?

By 1962 all of the cars on the road will be oiled at the factory and the regular visit you pay to the service station will not involve a grease job. At least one model, perhaps the Ford Thunderbird, will have this feature included in 1960. The development of new plastic sealings and other materials will make possible in cars what has been done in many finely machined tools used by industry.

Our question is, Will the car producers do a better job of quality control on these vital parts than has been the case on the rest of their car in the past few years. It is a rare new car that isn't bounced back into the garage for numerous adjustments.

CONVERTIBLE WANTED

Detroit's engineering ingenuity still has not come up with the convertible that we believe is possible. For many years we have anticipated the development of a streamlined number which would drop the top out of sight. The Ford retractible came close to meeting this demand, but it inconveniently filled up a major share of the rear compartment.

Why not a small well behind the seat into which the top would fold and be covered by a metal part of the body which would lift to let the top in and settle back level with the car lines automatically. To this we would add power windows, straight up and down for easy meshing. We also would include safety belts and a grip bar on the floor to keep all aboard in case of a turn-over.

None of this is very complicated and convertibles are growing in popularity. Detroit always seems to be a shade asleep.

NEW MOTOR

GMC is testing out a new motor that will drive for 200,000 miles, they hope, without servicing. It is a V6 and offers much in the way of power and economy. They also are making a V12 which will really rocket the big ones.

INVESTIGATION SUGGESTED

We believe the Veterans Administration could stand a good look by a congressional committee. It is our opinion that the VA errs on the side of the law's letter and uses little of the heart. If a veteran is so ill that he risks his life when he makes trip to a VA hearing and if his doctors say that his illness is service-connected, what does the VA need to convince it that a full pension is in order?

While we pinch these little pennies for the average serviceman we retire high ranking officers on fat pensions and allow them to accept fat corporation jobs, for which their chief qualifications are their connections in Washington.

POOL IN SCHOOL

An Olympic-sized swimming pool is included in the new Cheltenham twp. high school which is located on a 50-acre lot. It also has 54 classrooms, houses 1500 pupils and can be expanded to take care of 1800, has a 1200-seat auditorium, a 160-seat gymnasium, classrooms equipped with closed and commercial television, a football field, a track, two baseball diamonds, twelve tennis courts, and practice fields.

The pool will be open to the public week ends, evenings, and all summer.

Did you ever hear that song before?

pneumonia is cheap

Not too long ago, pneumonia meant a sure trip to the hospital and about a 50/50 chance of survival. The lucky ones spent costly weeks recuperating.

Today, thanks to new and potent drugs, pneumonia can be knocked out in a few days for only a few dollars.

DIAL SPINNERS

Friday

TROUBLE SHOOTERS premieres on WGR, WJAC and WICU at 8 p.m. This is a new filmed drama series built around the exciting, far-flung adventures of crack construction supervisors. Keenan Wynn and former decathlon star Bob Mathias are starred. The first program in the series is "Liquid Death", the story of a construction crew and entire town imperiled when the workmen transport a truckload of nitroglycerin over a treacherous mountain road.

THE LAST QUARTER, at 8:30-9:30 p.m. on NBC stations, is a look at major world issues as they are likely to shape events in the last three months of 1959. Six NBC News correspondents will return from their foreign posts to take part in the program, in addition to three reporters stationed in the U. S. The Khrushchev visit will be a topic for much discussion on the program.

DRAGONS OPEN FRIDAY

Beneath the arcs of Corry high stadium at 8:30 Friday night the Warren high Dragons will kick-off their abbreviated eight-game 1959 campaign.

Coach Ralph Veights has a nucleus of six veterans to line up against the Beavers who boast 10 returnees. The Dragons dumped Corry in last season's opener, 14-0, and went on to a 6-2-1 season. Their opponents tomorrow night at a 6-3 account.

Why People Don't Fish

Close to 600 former buyers of Pennsylvania fishing licenses responded to the published request of fish wardens for reasons why they no longer buy licenses, according to an announcement today by Ken Corey, warden in the Warren county district. The information was being sought in conjunction with the present study by a special committee of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives of the decline in the sale of fishing licenses in 1957 and 1958.

In the aggregate, 41 reasons were cited, with some letters containing as many as six reasons. Mentioned most often was "license too high," though many qualified this by adding "for the number of fish to be caught," or "for the number of places to fish," or "for old folks."

"Not enough fish to be caught" was listed in 146 letters. Pollution was a close third, being listed 139 times. Other reasons that placed high were: not enough fish stocked, stocking methods, tackle and travel too expensive, too much emphasis on trout, trout stocked too small, motorboats and posted water.

Warden Ken Corey expressed his appreciation for the cooperation he received. He said, "These letters will prove valuable to the Fish Commission in its fishery and education program. They will also aid the committee of the Legislature in its study of the matter."

The letters were not without comments on the extreme and lighter sides. One declared that all the fish in a reservoir on the Pennsylvania-Maryland border were on the Maryland side, and asked, "Why don't the Fish Commission get some over on our side where I can fish for them." Another writer declared that he was married two years ago and his wife keeps him too busy to go fishing. He asked, "Would the Fish Commission do something about this."

BETTS TAKES EDGE

Betts Machine took a 2 to 1 advantage in the City Softball loop playoffs last night by whipping the Soda Mineral boys 12 to 2. Ken Sorenson was the winning hurler.

The next game in the best-of-five series will be played at 6 tonight on the West Side Field.

Tuesday night Betts shut-out Soda Mineral 9-0 on Ken Sorenson's one-hit mound performance. Swinging the heavy sticks at the plate were Tom LeTrent, with a double and home run, and Syd Cummings, who collected three safeties in four trips.

In last week's opening contest Bob Harrison chucked a no-hitter as the pop lads took an early edge in the series with a 3-2 victory over the Knights.

CD SESSION. The first fall meeting of the Civil Defense Rescue Division will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 14, at the American Legion Home. Come and bring a new member with you.

OUTDOORS

WILDLIFE'S LAST STAND

The United States has spent millions of dollars and many years in an effort to reforest much of the land which was lost to lumber speculators and to restock those forests and our open country with the animals which were slaughtered before the days of game laws. There is little left in the way of extensive areas which can be set aside as refuges.

If we had this to do over again and knew what we do today the uncontrolled practices of the pioneers would be outlawed and we would plan the preservation and the development of our land? We put this in the form of a question because we are wondering if we really would?

The reason for our doubt is that we now have an opportunity to do the right thing with a very new part of our nation and already there is opposition by those who think a dollar made now is far more important than the many dollars lost through the present unwise gain.

This applies to Alaska where the same spirit which made our West, and in fact our East, is busting loose, and efforts to set aside large areas for the preservation of timber, natural resources, and game are being fought. Already much of the mineral resources have been depleted, the salmon are overfished, thousands of forest acres have been lost to fires, and at the present rate the game soon will be so scarce that it no longer will be a major attraction.

The wise development of Alaska will team up industrialization with tourist attraction. Both will contribute to the state's prosperity. They can live together and can prosper. They augment each other.

For those who scoff at the suggestion that there is a danger to Alaska's wildlife, the caribou herd today is placed at only 20,000. That is over a million less than it was twenty years ago.

The Brooks range in Alaska is the only place in the United States where polar bear den up. Grizzly bears, dall sheep, wolverines, and black-tailed deer live there. This large range is only 2.4 per cent of Alaska's land.

There is a bill before congress which would set this land aside as a wildlife range. This would not be a refuge and thus the land would not be closed to regulated mining, oil and gas leasing.

There are no cities in this area and no one would be inconvenienced, but there is opposition. There are those who argue that Alaska would lose about $600,000 in federal road funds if the bill is passed.

So what? The gain would far exceed that amount and we are sure that all informed Americans would readily pay $600,000 if we could undo all of the harm which resulted to our natural resources during those exploitation years when this nation was too young to see the future.

But we can see it now and we should be protecting this valuable property. That is H.R. 7045 if you want to tell your congressman or senator to give it a favorable vote. Sportsmen's organizations also should inform themselves concerning this situation and all of us should be supporting the conservationists.

Another five or ten years at the rate of today's exploitation and it may be too late.

OPEN HOUSE

Sportsmen who would like to visit the Ross Leffler School of Conservation where our game wardens are trained, can do so on the afternoons of September 13 and 20. The current class and officials will be there to act as guides and to explain the training course.

Visitors may see the classrooms, lounge, sleeping quarters, dining hall, kitchen, skeet, rifle, and revolver ranges, athletic facilities, and the grounds. Wildlife often is seen near the school.

The school is located about seven miles from Brockway. A sign two miles west of that town will tell you where to leave Route 28. You will be welcomed by the Game Commission and staff members from 1 to 6 p.m.

MORE TRAPPING TIME

Those who catch muskrats will have an extra five weeks of fun this coming season. In addition to the regular season from November 21 to January 16, there will be a season concurrent with the one for beaver, February 13 to March 19. Some of the restrictions that apply to beaver trapping will be in effect for this second season, such as a limit of ten traps and restricted areas within twenty-five feet of beaver houses.
